MONDAY EVENING, MAY 28.

else, which drew out the immense crowds that filled the grand stand and overflowed the grounds. Everybody was on tiptoe of expectation, and the excitement ran to fever-heat. In the pools the betting was almost even, but it inclined sufficiently toward one side to show that there were numbers of experienced betters who believed that the splendid Kentucky horse would fail of achieving the task which had been laid out for him. Supreme confidence was felt in Ten Brocck's ability to beat the world in a race in which continued speed was the main requirement, but when it came to a mile dash his more prudent admirers preferred to wait for a precedent before scattering too freely their money or assurances of success. At a little after 3 o'clock, Ten Broeck, ridden by the city. William Walker, one of the most successful jockeys on the turl, stepped up the track past prompt and careful attention. the judges' stand, and was greeted with loud applause. Early Light and St. Louis, who were to run with him, the former to the first half mile and the latter to the second, also made their appearance, and Early Light walked up alongside of the monarch. The first start was a good one, and, as the two passed the stand, with Ten Brocek a little ahead, the drum tapped, the starter cried go and they went, the one as never a horse went before, and the other in a gallant attempt to perform the impossible task of keeping up. Past the first quarter they swept, Ten Broeck increasing his lead and dashing with wonderful speed toward the half, where St. Louis was waiting to join him. Before he got there St. Louis started on the third quarter, and the phenomenon of seeing horse a shead of him moved Harper's pet to a fresh burst of speed. As he stormed into the home stretch the excitement and enthusiasm increased. Kidded hands waved lace handker-chiefs and ragged boys waved ragged hats; manly lungs sounded congratulatory cheers and fair throats swelled as though they would like to do the same if decorum were not such a tyrant and amidst it all Ten Broeck darted across the line triumphantly, completing the distance in 1:39%—two seconds earlier than the time he had started out to beat. It was an annihilation of time and space in earnest.

The first quarter was finished in 244, the half in 494, the three-quantures in 1:134, and the mile in 1:394.

After the race, Ten Broeck was taken over to the Club House and turned loose for the admiration of a large party which had gathered there, while Mr. Harper, his happy owner, was toasted and congratulated by a number of the most prominent gentlemen of the State, who had gathered to witness the triumph of Kentucky's greatest horse. - Louisville Courier Journal.
